2. Employ functional interventions in Integrative Psychotherapy
3. Describe the place of structural interventions in Integrative Psychotherapy
4. Implement Recursive Schema Activation as a schema change method in psychotherapy
5. Recognize relational interventions in Integrative Psychotherapy

Featuring Dr. Mark R. McMinn

Mark R. McMinn, Professor of Psychology, teaches in the Graduate Department of Clinical Psychology at George Fox University. Mark holds a PhD from Vanderbilt University, is a licensed psychologist in Oregon, and is board certified by the American Board of Professional Psychology. He is a Fellow of the American Psychological Association (APA) and a former president of the APA’s Psychology of Religion division.

Mark enjoys teaching and has won awards for teaching excellence both at George Fox and at Wheaton College. He is also a clinician with many years of experience in counseling and psychological assessment. Most of his clinical work these days is focused on clergy health, and his research over the past decade has focused on how mental health professionals and clergy can work together well.

In addition to writing over 120 chapters and articles, Mark has authored or co-authored eleven books and co-edited four more. His past books include Sin and Grace in Christian Counseling: An Integrative Paradigm, Integrative Psychotherapy: Toward a Comprehensive Christian Approach (co-authored with Clark D. Campbell), Finding Our Way Home: Turning Back to What Matters Most, Care for the Soul (co-edited with Timothy R. Phillips), and Psychology, Theology, and Spirituality in Christian Counseling.
